

Injured at Work?

Important steps to filing a successful WSIB Claim.

WSIB Legislative changes and employers' challenges to workplace injuries are not always in the best interest of injured workers. Not following proper procedures after suffering a work related injury/illness can lead to WSIB claim denial and a delay to access of the necessary medical treatment to ensure complete recover.

Immediate medical attention is the key!

Many injured workers have had lost time claims denied due to the fact that an accident report was not submitted in a timely fashion (usually in the first 24 hours post-accident) by a certified healthcare professional such as family doctor, ER physician, or walk in clinic doctor. Simply reporting an injury to your supervision or visiting the plant medical department does not constitute an accident report being submitted to WSIB. If you can't see your family doctor right away it is advisable to seek immediate medical attention by way of an attending physician at the hospital emergency room or a walk in clinic. It is the attending physician's responsibility to fill out a WSIB Form 8 which should include OBJECTIVE PHYSICAL FINDINGS related to your injury diagnosis. Ask for a copy. It is always a good idea to follow up with your own GP if your first medical attention was elsewhere. Your personal physician should also submit medical information to the WSIB through the appropriate forms.

The accident employer has responsibilities in the event of an accident include providing transportation to the appropriate medical facility and payment of wages for the remainder of your shift. The employer is then obliged to send a Form 7 to WSIB and must provide a copy to the injured worker.

Following your accident, the employer can request a Functional Abilities Form (FAF) from your treating physician in order to determine what modified work/light duties they can offer you. You are obliged under WSIB legislation to co-operate with your employer in an early and safe return to work plan as long as the modified duties offered are within the physical restrictions outlined in the FAF.

Once your injury has been reported to the WSIB due to the filing of Forms 7 and 8, the WSIB will assign your claim to a case manager who will mail the injured worker a Form 6 to complete and return to the WSIB. Upon receiving the Form 6, we suggest you bring this form along with any medical reports down to the union hall for assistance in filling it out.

For Your Information

WSIB Operational Policy requires case managers to use the Five Point Check System to rule on initial entitlement. An allowable claim must have the following five points:

1. An Employer
2. A Worker
3. Personal Work Related Injury
4. Proof of Accident which may include witnesses
5. Compatibility of diagnosis to accident or disablement history (extremely important)

Note: If your WSIB claim is denied, contact the Local Union office for assistance.

A Worker's Guide

TO REPORTING A WORKPLACE INJURY/ILLNESS

SEEK IMMEDIATE MEDICAL ATTENTION

First aid, Family Doctor, Clinic or Hospital Emergency Dept.

REPORT IMMEDIATELY

Report all workplace injuries/illnesses to your employer
Reporting a minor injury can help prevent future injuries

SEEK ASSISTANCE

Consult your workplace/Local Union Representative to determine next steps, including filing a Worker's Comp Report

DOCUMENTATION

Obtain copies of all documents including employer's, worker's and doctor's reports

CO-OPERATE IN A EARLY & SAFE RETURN TO WORK PROGRAM Seek assistance from your workplace/Local Union Representative

unifor
theUnion | lesyndicat

unifor.org/healthandsafety