Do Canadian Mining companies exploit workers overseas?

Canadian mining operations in Latin America and Africa have become notorious for exploiting workers and destroying the environment. A guest speaker from MiningWatch.ca will tell us what this is all about and what we can do about it.

This video conference course is a part of the McMaster/Unifor Labour Studies Certificate Program and will be held on Monday March 21, 5:30pm-8:30pm. Join us from the comfort of your own home.

New workers, veteran workers and retirees are all encouraged to attend this course.

For more information contact Vince Guardari or Ashley Kofsky, 905-641-6527. To register for a course, fill out the online form:

Control the Corporations

Canadian mining companies operate around the world and dominate the sector in number and the amount of capital raised for exploration. But there are no regulations or controls on their activities to prevent them from profiting from weak protection for the environment, workers, indigenous peoples and human rights in host countries. – MiningWatch.ca
